

HABITEC'S PRIVACY POLICY

Habitec Security, Inc. ("Habitec") respects and is committed to protecting your privacy. This privacy describes what information Habitec collects, how it uses that information and how Habitec safeguards that information.

Basic Data Collection

To provide services and products to you, Habitec collects basic personal information, including names, street address, telephone numbers, e-mail addresses, bank account and/or credit card information, information to run credit reports including social security numbers, and billing information. If you provide an email address, that email address is not encrypted, and may be used for billing purposes.

We also collect protected health information ("PHI") for our Medical Alert product. This information is maintained so that in the event of an emergency, the Habitec operator will be able to properly communicate necessary information with appropriate emergency response authorities that Habitec contacts in the event of an emergency.

Habitec does not share personal information or PHI with third parties except as permitted or required by: 1) applicable federal and state legal and regulatory requirements; 2) compliance with any governmental or judicial process; 3) credit verification and the provision of products and services to you and; and 4) law enforcement or other government emergency response departments and agencies.

We may also collect on an aggregate basis, including standard web server traffic information that cannot be used to identify you, general traffic, site usage, the domain name you used to access Habitec's website, browser information and platform, the link that you used to reach Habitec's website, your length of stay on the website, website activity logs, which pages on Habitec's website you visited within our website, any links used from our website to reach a third-party's website, etc.

Securing the Privacy of Your Data

Habitec is fully committed to protecting the security of your personal information, and in the case of its Medical Alert program, your PHI. No data is stored or maintained on Habitec's website.

All financial data is directed to or stored on Habitec's server, which is a password protected, restricted system using business operations software for financial transactions that encrypts data entered and stored in that program. Habitec's servers are also subjected to periodic external security audits. Forms generated in response to credit checks are not stored on Habitec's computer system.

Habitec processes financial transactions through its business operations software, which encrypts the data. Information and required files are set up through Habitec's business operations software and transmitted to a customer's bank or through a third-party processing company for credit card payments. Files and information transmitted to a third party are kept in a secure window with limited access and is password protected. Our financial payment practices are in conformance with Payment Card Industry Data Security Standard (“PCI DSS”).

Habitec maintains PHI in conformance with Health Insurance Portability and Accountability Act’s (“HIPAA”) Privacy and Security Rules to protect against unauthorized use and disclosure of PHI and electronic PHI. We also require all our employees to sign a HIPPA Privacy Acknowledgement. By signing the HIPPA Privacy Acknowledgement, our employees acknowledge the importance of securing and releasing PHI to appropriate, pre-authorized persons.

We educate and train our staff about the importance of protecting the confidentiality and security of your personal information and PHI. In addition, Habitec’s Employee Manuals include a work policy reminding its employees of the need to protect customer’s information and that they may not use any such information for their own personal use. This rule also reminds our employees that they must sign and adhere to the HIPPA Privacy Acknowledgement.

Habitec takes numerous precautions to protect the confidentiality and security of your protected information. Because we cannot fully predict all threats and new ones are evolving every day, Habitec makes no warranty, guarantee, or representation that your use of its website or your information can always be fully secure or will never be subject to unauthorized access, misuse or improper disclosure despite the security policies, protections and other measures we have implemented.

Username and Password

Certain areas of Habitec’s website require secure login for access. These areas may include your account information, which requires you to use and enter your username and password. You are responsible for all actions and activities that require your login. Habitec, therefore, recommends that you take those steps you believe to be necessary to protect the confidentiality of your username and password. Should you become aware of any disclosure, theft or unauthorized use of your username or password, you should immediately contact and notify Habitec.

Cookies

Cookies are data that are sent to and stored on your web browser on your computer’s hard drive to speed up your access to Habitec’s website and the information you wish to see. However, cookies do not contain any personal information or PHI.

External Links

Although Habitec’s website contains links to other websites, this policy only applies to Habitec. These links do not constitute an express or implied endorsement of these sites. We do not endorse or disclose your personal information or PHI to these sites and are not responsible for any privacy practices, or policies they maintain or employ. You should review and understand each of these websites privacy policies, if any.

Sharing Your Information

Habitec understands that you entrust it with your personal information and for those customers using its Medical Alert product, your PHI, and does not sell or trade your personal information or PHI. We only use or disclose such information to third parties as described above.

Consent

Your use of Habitec's website constitutes your consent to the above practices and procedures for collecting, securing, using and disclosing your information as described above.

Habitec may, at its sole discretion, update or modify its privacy policy from time to time, and will post any updates or changes to keep you informed how Habitec collects, secures, uses and discloses your information. You should regularly review this privacy policy for any changes.
